We were commissioned by Architects for Aid to act as consultants to work with the Local NGO partners (El Shaddai) to design and manage the construction of a new school building. The local NGO has been working for the street children in the region since 1996, by providing food, shelter and access to education for these underprivileged children. To support these children we had spent 6 months living amongst the community in India designing, supervising and managing the school building construction. Thus by facilitating intensive user group workshops which emphasized the involvement of all parties to collectively generate design solutions, we believe that the school building has been enriched.
